Providing for the Maintenance of a Band to Play Funeral Marches at his Grave.

Dr. Wilson J. H. Bruch of Phillipsburg, N. J., was sole heir to the estate of his father, George Bruch, a farmer and storekeeper, who died some ten or twelve years ago. The old man's property was valued at nearly $100,000. The homestead was in the lower part of the town of Phillipsburg. Young Brush was for some time a student in Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., but he did not graduate. Easton is just across the Delaware River from Phillips. burg. After quitting college, young Bruch studied medicine in the University of Pennsylvania, and took his degree as Doctor of Medieine. He was a surgeon in the army, but did not follow his profession after going out of the service. He lived a life of leisure, and was noted for his eccentricities. For some years after the death of his father Dr. Bruch lived at the old homestead. He was unmarried, and among his associates in Phillineburg and Easton he spent his money freely. He was a fine-looking man, of medium figure, with dark hair and eyes, and he wore a full dark beard. He dressed well, and drove a fast dark beard. He dressed well, and drove a fast horse. At one time he was a member of the School Board in Phillipsburg, and he was subsequently a prominent candidate for the Demogratic nomination for Mayor. He said that if he was nominated and elected he would build a handsome office for the Mayor and give it to the town; but he was not nominated. He was unpopular with many by reason of his affecting to look down on the laboring classes. "D—n a men who has to work!" is an expression that was credited to him. He was a disbellever in God. After returning from a two years' sojourn in Europe, he said that he had never believed that there was a heaven, but if there was, it was Paris.

that there was a heaven, but if there was, it was Paris.

Dr. Bruch died in Easton on the 19th of May last in his forty-third year. It is said that at the last moment he belied his profession of infidelity by sending for a Lutheran elergyman. His death occurred in a house in Ferry street, Easton, which was kept for him by the former wife of John Carey. Before he quitted the homestead, Mrs. Carey was his housekeeper, and Carey has served a term of two rears in the penitentiary for calling her to the door and shooting her while she was housekeeper at the homestead. Mrs. Carey secured a divorce from her husband. In the old homestead residence, a 25-story brick house of antique build, was a safe that had been built into the walls. It was fastened by an old German padlock of curious construction, and no one knew how to open it after he died. His housekeeper said that he always went through a sort of ceremony when opening it, and tried to make her think that there was some mystery about it. When it was ways went through a sort of ceremony when opening it, and tried to make her think that there was some mystery about it. When it was finally opened, it was found to contain some old notes and bonds, a few silver coins of early date, and a very old gold watch.

A short time before his death Dr. Bruch made a will, into which he carried his eccentricity to such an extent that the document was considered the most singular ever signed and witnessed in that region. The will was drawn by Col. J. M. Robeson, and witnessed by him and B. Sherrerd, Dr. John J. Detwiller of Easton was appointed executor, with the proviso that in the event of his refusing to serve, the Oraphans' Court of the county of Warren was to appoint some suitable person or persons' to see that the provisions of the will were executed. It is said that by private arrangement Dr. Bruch set aside $100 to pay for beer to be drunk by those who should follow his body to the grave. The will begins as a believer's will might—"In the name of God, Amen." It requests that all the just debts and the funeral expenses be paid as soon as convenient after his decease. It bequeathes to his executor all his property, to be disposed of as is subsequently directed among his living relatives; and then follows the proviso: "And, in oase I have failed to recollect any relative or relatives as closely connected by blood as those hereinbefore menamong his living relatives, and then follow the provise: "And, in case I have failed to re collect any relative or relatives as closely connected by blood as those hereinbefore mentioned, then it is my will that my said executor shall pay to them the sum of $1,000, to be equally divided among them or the survivors of them; and in case I have not forgotten ansuch relatives as aforesaid, then I orde the said $1,000 to be divided among the legatees hereinfefore mentioned shar and share alike." The executor is the ordered "to purchase a burial plot of ground of the Easton Gemetery, and cause to be erected thereon a monument of granite, the cost not to exceed $50,000," and "to invest in the bonds of the United States of America the sum of $5,000 and such additional sum or sums that may be set apart by me, and the accumulation thereof and out of the accumulations thereof to pay all sums of money expended in keeping said family monument and burial plot, and the inclosurthereof, in good repair."

The fifth provision of the will is as follows.

sums of money expended in keeping said family monument and burial plot, and the inclosure thereof, in good repair."

The fifth provision of the will is as follows:

"It is my will, and I do order my executors to pay over to the inhabitants of the town of Phillipsburg, in the County of Warren, in its corporate capacity, the sum of $10,000, to be held in trust forever by the said inhabitants of the town of Phillipsburg, to annually pay the interest of so much as shall be needful and necessary to and for the purpose of establishing and supporting a military band of music, to be called The Bruch Cornet Band of the Town of Phillipsburg, whose duty it shall be to march to the aforesaid cemetery on the anniversary of my death and on such holidays as are established by law, and on other proper occasions, and then and there perform a funeral march and such other appropriate music as the leader of said band shall designate and appoint." To guard against any attempt to break the will, the following is added: "It is my will in case any of the leader of any of the leaders of the leaders of the proper occasions and the following is added: "It is my will in case any of the leaders of the said band shall designate and appoint." To guard against any attempt to break the will, the following is added: "It is my will in case any of the legatese mentioned in this my will shall contest its validity, then I hereby absolutely revoke the legacy or legacies of such objecting party or parties, and the legacy or legacies so revoked I hereby give and devise to the inhabitants of the town of Phillipsburg in trust to pay the interest thereof for the support of the common schools of the town of Phillipsburg."

It is said that there is a codicil to the will bequeathing to the Mrs. Carey who was the deceased man's housekeeper the interest of $5,000 while she remains unmarried. The will provides for the distribution of about $100,000. The estate, it is estimated, is worth between $60,000 and $70,000. The document has been admitted to probate in Pennsylvania, but not in New Jersey as yet.

to probate in Pennsylvania, but not in New Jersey as yet.

According to the provisions of the will, the bequests are all to be reduced pro rata in case the estate does not equal the total amount called for by the bequests, except that the monument is not to cost less than $40,000. It will be some time before the money willed to the town of Phillipsburg for the burpose of organizing and maintaining the band will be available, and the authorities have not taken any steps in anticipation of its receipt. This bequest, being in consonance with the eccentric expressions of Dr. Bruch while living, created very little surprise, and the provisions in respect to it will undoubtedly be carried out.

Dr. Detwiller, the executor, has not been informed of any intention on the part of legatees to contest the will.

CONTESTING A MILLIONAIRE'S WILL. Of Two Sons Excluded in the Will One Attacks and the Other Defends It.

KINGSTON, N. Y., June 10.-The contest over the will of the late Joseph B. Sheffield of Baugerties, N. Y., promises to be a lively and protracted one. The beginning was before Surrogate A. B. Parker in this city yesterday. The Hon, Peter Cantine, ex-Surrogate of Uister County, appeared for the proponent of the will, and the firm of Lord & Lord, through Scott Lord, Jr., appeared for the contestant, HANDS on shirts and drawers; also two small girl quick with needle. 62 Railroad av., Jersey City. At future hearings the Hon. Scott Lord will head the opposition to the will. Joseph B. Sneffield, over whose will the contest has arisen, was one of the wealthlest men in Ulster County. For many years he carried on the manufacture of paper at Saugerties. The business is now continued by his son, William R. Sheffield. The elder Sneffield died in March. the manufacture of paper at Saugerties. The business is now continued by his son, William R. Sheffield, The elder Sneffield died in March. 1879, leaving an estate variously estimated to be worth from $800,000 to $1,200,000. He also left a will dated July 28, 1879, which was admitted to probate April 7, 1879. The witnessus to the will were Thomas P. Handridge, Benjamin F. Crump, and Charles Coon. The will is not a very closer one, and even lawyers have tried hard to solve some of its mysterious passages without having reached a clear conciliance. The document is long, covering over sixteen pages of legal cap paper. One peculiarity of the will is that the testator has affixed his name to the bottom of each page in red ink. The only legatese named in the will are Agnes S. Sheffield of Saugerties. Sarah A. Brownell of New York, Louise W. Stirling of Liverpool, England; May C., Caroline P. Joseph B. Jr., and Agnes L. Sheffield, Jr., of Saugerties, the last four named being minors. The testator names as exectors William R. Sheffield, executrix. The will gives in substance to each of the chidren living texcept J. Lenthal and William R.) the sum of $5,000. To his widow during her life, and the rest of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren after the part of the estate to go to the chidren a ence over the father, claiming that by reason of his age and mental and physical condition he was the more easily subjected to such undue influence. The witnesses to the instrument were examined yesterday, and united in holding that the deceased man was of sound mind and fully able to understand the meaning and intention of the will that he had made. Many of the leading citizens of Saugerties will be called to the wilness stand during the contest. The further hearing was adjourned to Monday, June 28.
